MITEA - Marathon Business Presentation on 19.12.2021 Sunday

Highlights of MIT Entrepreneurs Association (MITEA)..contd A Report on “ Marathon Business Presentation ” :

The event, Marathon Business Presentation was planned well in advance and the invitation was shared with all the MIT Entrepreneurs Association (MITEA) members around the globe. Since, the usual venue “ Anna University Alumni Club ” was under renovation work, we decided to conduct the same at IIT Madras Research Park.

There was overwhelming response from lot of participants and it was a tough task to limit our presentations to 24 numbers on a single day. Due to seating capacity constraints in the Sarabha Hall we booked, we have to ensure that the total participants did not cross more than 50 numbers as the seating capacity was only maximum 50. Few Students of MIT had the chance to participate in the event full day and interact with all the presenters.

In the invitation shown below, the pictures shown were all the MIT Alumni Entrepreneurs who gathered on 16th February 2019 at Anna University Alumni Club, Prof Hegde’s Hall at the time of first Business meeting . It was a splendid success with 46 alumni entrepreneurs across the globe participated and sowed the seeds for MIT Entrepreneurs Association—MITEA

How to Pick your Stock—Part 03

INTRODUCTION TO STOCK MARKET (HOW TO PICK YOUR STOCK - PART 3)

-RAJESH VEDHAMURTHY (HIKEON CAPITAL)

A very Prosperous New year to you all.

In this article we will study deep into some more Candlestick patterns.

● MORNING STAR:

The morning star is a bullish candlestick pattern which evolves over a three day period. It is a downtrend reversal pattern. The pattern is formed by combining 3 consecutive candlesticks

● THE LOGIC BEHIND THE MORNING STAR IS AS FOLLOWS:

1. The market is in a downtrend and makes new lows during this period.
2. On day 1 of the pattern (P1), as expected, the market makes a new low and forms a long red candle. The large red candle shows strong selling .
3. On day 2 of the pattern (P2), the bears show dominance with a gap down opening. After the gap down opening, nothing much happens during the day (P2) resulting in either a doji or a spinning top. Note the presence of doji/spinning top represents indecision in the market.
4. On the third day of the pattern (P3), the market/stock opens with a gap, followed by a green candle that manages to close above P1's red candle opening.
5. P3 is where all the action unfolds. On the gap up opening itself, the bears would have been a bit jittery. Encouraged by the gap up opening buying persists through the day, so much so that it manages to recover all the losses of P1. The expectation is that the bullishness on P3 is likely to continue over the next few trading sessions, and hence one should look at buying opportunities in the market.

How to Pick your Stock—Part 03...contd

A Wise trader initiates a long trade at the close of P3 (around 3:20 PM) after ensuring that P1, P2, and P3 together form a morning star.

The evening star is a bearish equivalent of the morning star. The evening star appears at the top end of an uptrend. Like the morning star, the evening star is a three candle formation and evolves over three trading sessions.

● HARAMI

On day 2 of the pattern (P2), the bears show dominance with a gap down opening. After the gap down opening, nothing much happens during the day (P2) resulting in either a doji or a spinning top. Note the presence of doji/spinning top represents indecision in the market.

As the name suggests, the bullish harami is a bullish pattern appearing at the bottom end of the chart. The bullish harami pattern evolves over a two day period, similar to the engulfing pattern.

In the chart below, the bullish harami pattern is encircled.

● LOGIC BEHIND A BULLISH HARAMI PATTERN IS AS FOLLOWS:

1. The market is in a downtrend pushing the prices lower, giving the bears absolute control over the markets.

How to Pick your Stock—Part 03...contd

2. On day 1 of the pattern (P1), a red candle with a new low is formed, reinforcing the bear's position in the market.
3. On day 2 of the pattern (P2), the market opens at a price higher than the previous day's close. On seeing a high opening price, the bears panic, as they would have otherwise expected a lower opening price.
4. The market gains strength on P2 and manages to close on a positive note, thus forming a blue candle. However, P2's closing price is just below the previous days (P1) open price.

The idea is to go long on the bullish harami formation. Risk takers can initiate a long trade around the close of the P2 candle. The risk-averse can initiate a long trade at the close of the day after P2, only after confirming that the day is forming a blue candle.

Bearish harami is the exact opposite of bullish harami, it appears at the end of the uptrend.

● BEAR SASH

Bear Sash is a two candle pattern where the Trend not important .First candle would be a green candle followed by red candle that opens within green real body and closes under prior open. Strict criteria to look out is

1. Both candles must have long real bodies
2. 2 nd candle closes under prior low .
3. Red real body closes at, or near, its lows pattern psychology .The green candle means the bulls are running the show. And then the next session the market gaps lower and is not only unable to make it this lost ground, but closes under the green candle. This shows the bullish energy has been sapped out of the market resulting in very scared bulls.

Points to Ponder (Nirmas.. Success Story)

In the memory of his loving daughter, a doting father created an empire of Rs. 7000 Cr & brought his daughter's legacy to life. Here's their incredible story.

In 1969, Karsanbhai, the son of a small farmer, worked as a lab technician at the Gujarat Govt. Department of Mining and Geology.

Flexible work hours and job security in a government sector allowed Karsanbhai to explore his passion for Chemistry after job hours. He picked up a project to create a high-quality yet low-cost detergent powder.

This was when Hindustan Unilever Limited's Surf was a market monopoly. Surf was a luxury item, costing Rs. 13/ kg. Karsanbhai started testing with soda ash, and after much trial & error, conjured a formula that would dominate the market.

After office hours, Karsanbhai cycled around the neighborhood, selling homemade detergent named after his daughter, Nirma, for Rs. 3/Kg. Karsanbhai had lost his daughter 'Nirupama' in a car accident and named the product after his daughter. His dream was to give his daughter good education and have a worldwide name. Therefore, he decided to make his daughter's name famous through Nirma washing powder and keep her immortal.

By the early '80s, Nirma conquered the market share in Gujarat. Seeing this potential, Karsanbhai left his government job to pursue it as a full-time venture. Patel began working on the supply chain to sell Nirma across India.

But he noticed that retailers outside Gujarat were hesitant to sell it since buyers were unaware of its existence. This resulted in delayed payments, negative cash flow, and high losses to Patel. To tackle this problem, Karsanbhai took a risky yet pivotal step. He came out with a brilliant plan to push his idea to the market & promote his formula, followed by massive marketing campaigns - "Hema, Rekha, Jaya aur Sushma sabki pasand Nirma"

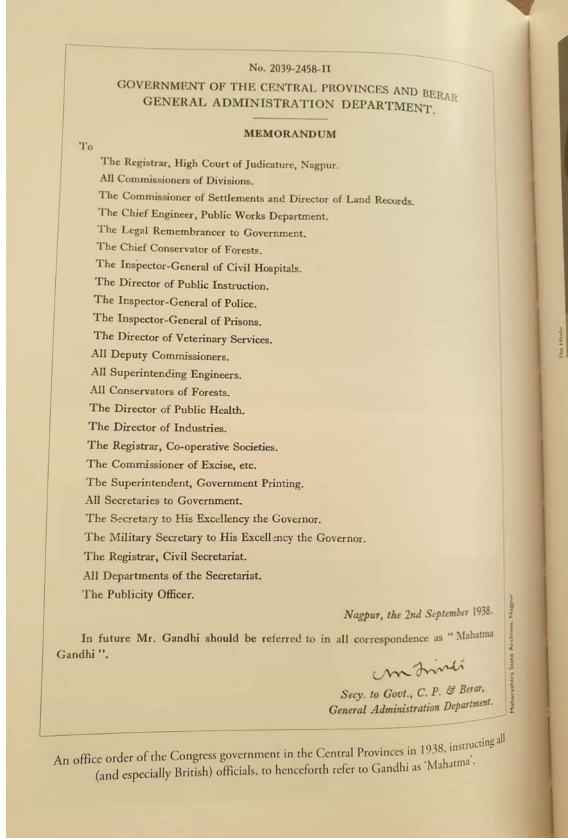

These ads challenged the stereotype of the average Indian middle-class woman, who was formerly just concerned with the household responsibilities but is now confident, glamorous, and ready to face any challenge.

Enticed by the ads, customers flocked to stores. As the demand for Nirma peaked, Karsanbhai flooded the market with his formula, resulting in record-breaking sales. By the end of 1988, Nirma had a whopping 60% market share and significantly outsold HUL's Surf in sales!

Today, Nirma employs over 18K+ people & is available even in the remotest areas of India. Karsanbhai's vision to transform India through the establishment of Nirma Institute of Tech, Nirma Ed. & Research Foundation and other institutions further show how revolutionary Nirma is!

Energy with new skills

Dear Sir & Ma'am

"Thank You All"

I am Kishore M (2014508019) B.tech (Rubber and Plastics Technologist), 2018 passed out.

I am poor at studies in writing examination but I am a good listener and good explainer to people expect mathematics, here this write up explains about me and how college experience make me an entrepreneur in short span?

I am belonging to below middle class family without any strong financial background. I don't have much more awareness about college studies when doing 12th standard as usual in counselling I got Madras Institute of Technology College in Department of Rubber and Plastics Technology last seat of the year, but I don't know about the college and course details.

I Joined and started my studies, 1st year went off casually no more depth in knowledge and no department studies. In second year, I got good exposure of rubber and plastics my staffs very supportive at period of learning good way of teaching and doubts clearing without any hesitation. They make the students more involving into practical knowledge. Key to success is In - plant Training and Industrial training makes me learn about the difference between the theory and practical knowledge. In college there is team called Entrepreneurship Development which helps me know about the scope of business in upcoming world. Then in end of second year I decided to become an entrepreneur but in thing of investment its breaks over. I didn't lose my hope something will turn up.

In college especially Madras Institute of Technology there is lot of time to enrich your skill and extra knowledge development other than studies this make me to start my business. In my college time I have been participant in National business plan competition Meraki FIIB and lost due to some financial arrangements in projects (Plastics Recycling and Solid waste Management). But I didn't lose hope I think to implement the project in college in small level without investment with help of college (our department have all the facility to recycle and make a product).

I have discussed with my staff (Dr. K. Ravichandran & Dr. B. Kothandaraman) and senior (Mr. C. Ganapathi) Supported my idea and implemented with PET bottles collected from College area and reduced the contamination.

Another thing I came across the project work with Dr. K. Elangovan Sir helps me a lot to learn about the government projects.

In Final Year, which makes to learn lot in our college there is system every department have separate student team same as we have “SPART” student bodies. This team will yearly conduct symposium by sponsors with companies. For the year 2018 I was selected as Vice – Chairman (selected by students) which make to learn more things outside college. We successfully conducted event “ELASTOPLAZ’18” from the event my exposure learnt what is “Team Management” and “Leadership”.

As my final and best exposure is final year project “DESIGN AND DATA ANALYSIS& DEVELOPMENT OF COMPOSITE SPORTS PRODUCTS” at Jayashree Polymer Pvt Ltd., in Pune for 3 months under guidance of “Dr. L.S. Jayakumari” ma’am. I think it was lucky to get this opportunity because the company called us for report and survey the complete details “How to start the company to manufacture and sale the composite bicycle?” via this project my exposure is very high towards entrepreneur. We framed the cost and financial details for worth of 400 crores.

This is my college exposure and I am really glad to thank you all the staffs in department for the kind support.

As a summary the skills learnt from college which helps in field to become entrepreneur is

1. Organization Skills

Starting and running a business isn’t something do on the spur of the moment – it takes careful planning, goal setting, scheduling, and execution. – SPART I’ve exposed.

2. Communication Skills

Being a great entrepreneur means being people-oriented and having good communication skills – along the way, you will surely need to communicate with business partners, employees, and customers. – While in Seminar and PDA in college helped me.

3. Confidence

To lead employees and build relationships with partners and clients, you need to act with confidence. This doesn’t mean you should be strict and arrogant, but you do need to have faith in both yourself and your own abilities. – While exposing to field studies.

4. Commitment to Learning

Learning is a never-ending process. We must all continue to try to evolve, learn new things, and continually improve ourselves. Head to the library, read a new blog, attend a seminar, or watch a new documentary. Learning will help you and your business continue to grow. – Research and updates from staffs make me learn more.

5. Courage

It takes a certain amount of courage to do anything, especially when you are putting yourself out there with a new business. – In event of Elastoplaz’18 exposure

Entrepreneurial Journey of a Fresh Alumnus of MIT..contd

6. Tenacity

Tenacity is the persistence to never give up, even in the face of adversity. – In my PET bottle project - REPLAZ

7. Strong work ethic

The successful entrepreneur will often be the first person to arrive at the office and the last one to leave. They will come in on their days off to make sure that an outcome meets their expectations.

– Learnt from Final year Project.

This skill I have exposed in Madras Institute of Technology.
